The Achievement Initiative™

Achievement begins with showing up.

Together, we are making a difference!

This year, we've been talking a lot about the importance of teaching our children good life habits – the importance of showing up, being present and attending school.

We've sent out multiple pieces around this theme because we believe that well-informed parents help their children make correct choices.

At mid-year, we received our first look at our attendance results in our early elementary grades and I wanted to share them with you.

It's just exciting to see what happens when we all focus on attendance together.

The Achievement Initiative™

Achievement begins with showing up.

Let's keep up the good work!

Make attendance a priority all the way through to the end of the school year; every day counts.

- As a parent, you are the key to building good attendance habits that will last a lifetime.
- Children with good attendance habits have higher test scores and better grades.
- Our goal is to see attendance improvement in every grade.
- When making spring break plans, please don't make vacation time take away from school time. Spring Break:
March 29 - April 5

"The world is run by those who show up."

Right now at mid-year, we are on track to improving attendance.

At mid-year point, 67% of our kids are on track* with attendance.

It's clear that, together, we are helping our students make good choices about going to school every day.

That's GREAT! Let's make sure our kids keep showing up.
